

NEW - Homeworking survey 2022

Finance and legal sector

Last year Unite wrote to you to ask for your experiences of working throughout the pandemic. Thousands responded and your views helped to ensure your union could make your working lives the best that they could be.

The Covid-19 crisis has changed the nature of work for many employees within the finance sector.

It remains unclear if work practices will return to previous routines. There is a great deal of discussion taking place about what the future of work will look like, many employers are currently planning a hybrid working arrangement.

Unite wants to hear about your current experiences since the shift to homeworking and your views on future working.

Unite finance sector has launched a NEW survey for staff who still have some element of homeworking in their working practices. You can respond to the survey here:

This survey is for banking or insurance staff who are still working from home (whether fully or partially).

Unite Finance and legal sector wants to hear about your experiences since the shift to homeworking and your views on future working.
